CHINA WHEAT TEXT TO JAPAN IS BARRIED

GOLD STANDARD LOSES MARKET FOR DOWN

Noted Japan Statesman Is
City Visitor

His Excellency Iyemasa Tokugawa, Japanese Ambassador to Canada, says falling off of imports from Canada due to Australia's favorable exchange rate.

Canada's wheat exports to Japan have been lost to Australia—the result of Canada's "gold standard."

This was the revelation made by His Excellency Iyemasa Tokugawa, K. C. V. O. G. B. E., Imperial Japanese ambassador to the Dominion of Canada, who arrived in the city Thursday night over the C.N.R. from the coast, following a visit to his homeland and Manchukuo. In a lengthy interview on Friday, he answered politely and patiently a score of questions asked him with regard to Japan's international and economic policies, and how his country was being favored by the rest of the world as the result of a lot of "ill-informed, loose talk."

Quoted with regard to prospects of trade between Canada and Japan, His Excellency said:

"Our imports of wheat from Canada have fallen off greatly. We are now buying our wheat from Australia. This is a natural consequence of the favorable rate of exchange. You must understand that there is no ill feeling in my country against Canada. It is the most favorable terms."

"And we can buy our wheat cheaper from Australia."

TRADE FALLS OFF

With regard to other lines of import and export trade, the ambassador explained that trade between the Dominion of Canada and the Japanese Empire had naturally fallen off.

"Our imports of wheat from Canada have fallen off greatly. We are now buying our wheat from Australia. This is a natural consequence of the favorable rate of exchange. You must understand that there is no ill feeling in my country against Canada. It is the most favorable terms."

"And we can buy our wheat cheaper from Australia."

Quit

TOKYO, Dec. 1.—Difficulties regarding the 1934-1935 budget, with which the Japanese cabinet has been struggling for weeks without an agreement, were said yesterday to be threatening a rift in Premier Makoto Saito's ministry.

Fumio Goto, minister of agriculture and forestry, charged at Finance Minister Koriyama Takahashi's drastic cut in appropriation for Goto's department, notified the Premier of his intention to resign. The threat was described as dangerous because Goto is allied with the powerful defense ministers. General Sadao Araki, minister of war, and Admiral Matsu, minister of the navy, in opposition to Takahashi's efforts at economy. Premier Saito attempted to placate Goto and prevent his resignation. The consensus of political writers was that failure to do so might endanger the cabinet's life.

For a concrete comparison of La Fleche prices now and formerly: in 1929, $45 to $75 covered the range in which 95% of La Fleche Clothes were sold. Today this price range stands at $27.50 to $45, with quality maintained. Such value challenges the pretensions of factory imitation tailoring so cleverly advanced to exploit your necessity for clothes economy.

U.S. NAVAL POLICIES

Ambassador's Thanksgiving Address at London Frankly Outspoken Regarding American Aim.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—An outspoken defence of the American monetary and naval building policies and the declaration that the United States is operating an "equalization fund" for the protection of the dollar were made last night by American Ambassador Robert W. Bingham in a Thanksgiving address.

He described the "equalization fund," now said to be in excess of $30,000,000, "currently about $15,000,000" as one set up without hostile intent, to buy and sell gold on the market, to stabilize the dollar and to make long voyages.

He stressed the fact that only six guns were mounted on the larger United States cruisers, the same as on the smaller British craft.

Three hundred Americans heard the address given at the American Society in London.

He warned, in a serious tone, those who "sell the United States short" and answered those who have publicly disparaged the fact that the United States did not follow the British lead in building mail cruisers.

Mr. Bingham pointed out that the "United States must utilize the tonnage allocated under the London naval treaty by building fewer ships, but larger ones because they were self-contained and able to make long voyages."

He stressed the fact that only six guns were mounted on the larger United States cruisers, the same as on the smaller British craft.

Commander Evangeline Of "Army"

Married under the name Evangeline W. F. Fread

Marching her forces to meet the rapidly growing need for relief as winter approaches, Commander Evangeline Both of the Salvation Army is shown here, leaving the White House.

Her destination, and Chinese dinner are very early ones. It was 10 o'clock instead of seven, when I sat down to dinner, and after two courses I had to leave for a supper at which I had already promised to appear at 10 o'clock.

Japan was doing a great deal to develop the natural resources of the new state and rich resources they are too. A lot of new railway lines are in the process of being built and these new facilities developed.

Asked if these new lines were primarily strategic lines, for troop transport, Mr. Excellency said that on the contrary they had been built for strictly commercial purposes, but naturally could be used for the movement of troops, in the same way that any country would use its railway communications for military movements.

Will again open door. A question with regard to protests that the "open door" policy was being abandoned in Manchuria brought from the ambassador the reply that while this policy was being abandoned at the moment, other nations need not fear that they would be definitely closed out of opportunities in Manchuria. Once the country had been thoroughly opened up and developed, the "open door" would be available to all.

Great benefits had followed the formation of the independent state. A central bank had been established, and the old depreciated currency had been withdrawn.

Feeling improved. There has been a great betterment of feeling between China and Japan, he said. The new and better state of things in Manchuria was being maintained. His long career had been under water. He would show his desire to return to the old era of miracle, oppression and hardship, which had marked the rule of the old war lords.

Daughter in ill. He was greeted by John M. Innes, C. Pryor Logan and a number of Japanese residents who were waiting for him. He was accompanied by his daughter, who was receiving treatment at the United States Hospital for a bad cold. The minister was married in 1909 to a member of the Japanese royal family.

WHO GETS THE MONEY?

The Provincial Government announces the appointment of a commission to "study" the problem of provincial municipal taxation.

This is not the first survey of the kind to be made in Alberta. Some years ago a commission, headed by Dr. T. J. Ryan, of the University of Manitoba, was sent over the same ground and presented a very elaborate report.

This report however was never translated into legislation in any general way for reasons apparent in the contents. It provided plans and specifications for a wholesale increase in taxation, based on the assumption that the pocket of the taxpayer was an artesian well of money.

The new commission is not likely to fall into any such error. The taxpayer's pocket just now is in a good many cases absolutely empty, and increasingly fast. The problem that needs solution now is how the insufficient amount of tax-money that is available should be divided between the provincial and municipal government. Neither of them is getting as much as it requires to meet its obligations, nor within sight of the time when it may be able to do so.

The commission has been set up in the position of the executors of a bankrupt still going concern. There is not enough revenue to meet both the provincial and municipal expenses. The best the commission can do is apportion the amount that is available fairly between the two.

A GREAT CANADIAN

Sir Arthur Currie was Canada's greatest soldier, and one of its best known and most highly esteemed civilian citizens in the days of peace.

Sir Arthur was not a professional soldier.
But as a militia officer in pre-war times he set himself seriously to the study of military science. With the result that when the occasion came he was found fitted in knowledge, as he was in character, fore-sight and judgment, to lead the Canadian forces in the last terrible year of the fighting on the western front.

The record which the Canadian corps made under his leadership in the mud and blood of the Hindenburg line and the disintegration of the enemy's defense. Those who served under Sir Arthur join his contemporary commanders in bearing testimony to the skill with which these operations were conducted.

The war ended, Sir Arthur stepped back into civilian life to undertake the direction of one of the great industrial concerns of the country.

The organizing and directional talents which he showed on the battlefield were disclosed again in this, and those who served with him, and those who have since had the opportunity to know of his work, speak in the highest terms of his services at McGill.

Canadians will never forget the man who led their armies in France, nor the fine spirit
with which Sir Arthur took up again the duties and ways of peace. Those who have his comrades "over there" will remember also his leadership in the field and the keen interest he has taken in them since the fighting ended.

His militia officers and his doubts will recall that it was in the quiet days of the pre-war years Sir Arthur fitted himself for the call he had not then foreseen. They, too, may have been self-taught strategists, against the time of emergency.

CHEAPER TO LEND THAN TO SPEND

The cost of unemployment relief in Edmonton amounts to more than $850,000 for the eleven months past, and will run to $1,000,000 or more by the end of the year. The city, the provinces and the federal government are confronted with the problem of how to meet the exorbitant bill. Roughly, each is contributing about $300,000 per month, or from $350,000 to $400,000 for the year.

There is no prospect that relief cost will be less next year, unless means are taken to set a goodly number of our idle men at work on public undertakings. This can be done, but it is not a simple matter. It is not a proposition to do, cannot do unless the Dominion will supply the needed money as an interest-less loan or at only a nominal rate of interest.
If such a loan were forthcoming, the city could launch a construction program of roads, bridges, and other public works, and employ a large number of men throughout the winter, and put a million dollars of earned money in circulation.

It would be cheaper for Ottawa to supply
Edmonton with that amount of interest-free loan money than to go on paying out $350,000
in relief money it will never see again.

The Dominion could do that by simply issuing the needed currency against the surplus gold reserves Premier Bennett says he has lying in the treasury.

If the Dominion could do that, it would have thereby only cut in half, Ottawa would save $180,000 during the year, which it could credit to Edmonton as interest on the loan if it wanted to preserve the formalities.

The city council should press this matter upon the attention of the Government immediately and insistently. Our unemployed men must be found work and wages if their homes are to be saved, the city's taxes paid, and the business structure of the community preserved.

Council can do this with better grace because it would not be asking the Government to grant Edmonton a favor at the expense of the Dominion taxpayers. On the contrary, it would be suggesting a plan whereby the taxpayers of Canada would be saved several thousand dollars a month in relief money, with no offsetting cost to them whatever.

Perhaps Phyllis is a real pathfinder for her kind.

One of the best-loved and honored of actresses is Doris Kenyon, widow of the screen star, Milton Sills. Only a few weeks ago she was the center of a scandal because of her second marriage. There was a strong element of romance in the second marriage, for she was to marry an old schoolboy admirer who had attained fortune in the business world while she was attaining fame and fortune on the screen.

The romance that surrounded the second marriage, after a few weeks of living together, Miss Kenyon has started a suit for divorce from her husband, Arthur E. Hopkins, alleging that he had been unfaithful to her.

It is hard to say which class of man is the happiest. The old poem about the gloomy physicist who ordered him to sleep for a night in the shirt of a happy man, is a lot of truth to it. You will recall that when at last the courtiers found a truly happy man, the rogue didn't want to go to his back.

By a process of reasoning, I've come to the conclusion that the happiest man is the simplest life of all. Christian Arthur Wellesley, grand nephew of the first Duke of Wellington had been living on a western ranch before he came into the title of Earl of Cowley. Now the noble Earl is seeking to divest himself of his title so that he can settle down again on a western ranch, "Hatch life says being a member of the House of Lords and an aristocrat," says Earl Cowley.

But the recently retired Bishop of Edmonton, the late Bishop of the diocese of Columbia, preferred being a bishop to being a cowboy. His lordship in his early days rode steers and rode bucking broncos, before deciding to serve the church. He would not witness that he did not prefer being a bishop to being a cowboy.

It wasn't that he lived in lordly style like Cardinal Wolsey at Whitehall. He was a man with 1,200 guest chambers and an army of retainers. Edmontonians remember Bishop Gray's little house when a distinguished visitor
enquired of his Grace the way to the "Bishop's Palace."

"It's the brick and frame house on Third Street," says the Bishop, and he explained the Bishop with a twinkle in his eye.

If Earl Cowley prefers ranch life to the life of an English aristocrat, it is not because of episcopal life to life on the ranch, then the lot of the Canadian bishops must indeed be an enviable one.

The effort to extract promises of a 15 per cent. cut in income tax returns for the year 1924 is being made by the Dominion government. Fewer than one-quarter of them had signed up. The drive has still some days to go, but it looks possible that a majority of American farmers, who are the mainstay of the idea of deliberate sabotage or preferring to produce to the maximum and take their chances in the open market, will reject the government's proposition. In this respect the government's drive to cut American production will not be material.

It begins to look as if the wheat agreement may be nothing more than a collection of words.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Fift D'Orsay, the French-Canadian girl who became a Hollywood star, says she is going on a honeymoon with her sweetheart to see how she likes it. If they like the honeymoon they'll get married; if they don't they'll save themselves the expense and bother of getting a divorce.

Fift has a contract with a clause in it providing for cancellation of her contract if she brings adverse publicity—like the young Hollywood comedian who recently appeared on the stage and in the movies wearing only an excited expression, to tear at the passing troops
—so she is careful to explain that the honey-moons will be plentifully chartered.

Maybe the honeymoon idea isn't Fift's at all.
It may have originated in the fertile mind of her press agent. If so, this notice is proof that it is a good press-agenting. On the other hand, it may be a bright idea of her own. If the honey-moons, under such quiet conditions manage to preserve their exterior calm, then it speaks voluntarily for their peace of mind, though not necessarily for their wedded happiness.

Perhaps if each went honeymooning alone it might be a better experiment.

Marriages made by actresses are interesting, not only because of the personalities affecting, but because most actresses have character and temperament combined. They are curious in an exaggerated degree. They are pathfinders—often pathfinders—on the road to Happiness.

Phyllis Long, at 23 already twice married,
the ship reporter at New York, where she embarked for her second honeymoon, that "if necessary" she will marry eight or ten more men in the quest for the perfect mate.

Said she:

I think it's perfectly all right for the intellectual woman to search for the right man
and keep right on searching until she finds him.
It will consider a job well done if it finds its ideal.

After the outbreak for a good husband, is

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Mrs. W. writes: "I have suffered with nervous through worry and it has left me with insomnia. This has been a terrible year."

Answer: One of the best ways to cure insomnia is to take plenty of physical culture exercises and also take long walks each day
for at least four miles.

Question: A lady writes: "I have been suffering from indigestion for some time and am unable to eat much food. I am very nervous and anxious. I am sure that I am not alone in this. I am sure that I am not alone in this.
I am sure that I am not alone in this."

Answer: Potassium forms the most important and valuable part of the muscular structure. A lack of it prevents them from being strong and pliable. It is needed by the liver, spleen and red corpuscles. A lack of potassium and iron produces nervousness, underweight, and a lowered nervous and mental vitality. It assists in the

Nelles Buchanan Advises Placing Alumni In House

University Institutions Should Have Direct Parliamentary Representation as Occurs in European Countries.

"C.C.P. is a real-time born of the depression; it was formed to 'relieve' a nation's Conservative government from popular action. The rapid growth of the C.C.P. party is a sign of the times, political, economic and social." These statements formed the highlights of a speech, "Students in Politics," delivered to the Student Liberal Club of the University of Alberta by Nelles V. Buchanan, president of the Edmonton Liberal Association, Thursday evening.

"You have a definite political contribution to make to the taxpayers of this province who make your higher education possible," said the speaker. "If you do not acquire higher ethics and ideals at this institution it has failed in its purpose."

Mr. Buchanan contrasted political organization in Europe and America. Politics in a young country like Canada is a young country older men control governments. Evidence that the Liberal party has confidence in the rising generation, as political leaders, is shown by various "Young Liberal" organizations which are forming throughout the Dominion.

"The spoken and not the written word controls the destinies of nations. Laurier and MacDonald are quoted not from their writings but from their transcribed speeches. I don't know of any gift more valuable than ability to express one's opinion on one's feet," declared the speaker.

POLITICS A PROFESSION

Mr. Buchanan thought the university students should endeavor to elect alumni to the provincial house so that the institution would have

RELIEF CASES DECIDED UPON MERITS ALONE

Premier Brownlee Returns From Business Trip to Calgary

Popular as Alberta is concerned, the case of relief adopted in the municipality should be determined on the individual merit of that district, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee on his return from a two-day business visit to Calgary.

Asked regarding a report from Calgary to the effect that he was opposed to any increase in the scale of relief, the Premier said his remark was applied to a particular instance.

"My statement that I was opposed to any relief increase dealt specifically with the applications from two unemployed delegations asking that the scale of relief in Calgary be increased. In reply, I stated that it would be useless to raise that question at present, in view of the fact that the Calgary relief allowance already is higher than in any other city in this province."

"I made no reference whatever to any other part of the province or any other municipality. My reply had reference only to relief in Calgary. Insofar as other parts of the province are concerned, each case should be dealt with on its merits."

HALT ACTION ON ASSESSING OF PIPE LINES

Premier Brownlee Claims Unnecessary Apprehension Aroused

Unnecessary apprehension was aroused in oil circles over the alleged far-reaching effects of the Pipe Line Taxation Act, which was passed through the legislature last week, on Friday, following the blessing of the companies, who desired to get away from an original taxation, declared Premier J. E. Brownlee on Friday, following his return from Calgary.

Denial suggestion The suggestion that the tentative assessment made up by the Assessment Commission is a government policy designed to hit at the small shareholders is of course absurd, declared the Premier without dissent and it had the entire approval of all companies. I have no doubt this whole matter can be satisfactorily adjusted. There never has been any intention on the part of the government in any way to interfere with the oil industry and its development by unnecessary taxation.

It should also be made clear that if the act had not been passed municipalities could have raised pipe lines and wells on any basis.

Dealing with the misunderstanding Premier Brownlee said that the assessment committee had been created and sent out some tentative assessments in order to bring them to discussion. As this was done in the regular course of the commission, the matter did not come to the attention of the government until last Wednesday. He immediately communicated with Hon. R. G. Reid, minister of finance, and it appeared that the tentative assessments were not in accordance with the act. Any action has been stopped until the government inquiries into the whole matter.

Executive Council Of Government Has Permissive Right

There is no arrangement in this city which provides a man on relief from taking odd jobs, declared Hon. O. L. McPherson, minister of public works, on Friday, when referring to a case brought to his attention on Thursday.

No objection to Those On Relief Taking Odd Jobs

"No regular check is kept on a man's employment," he said. "The government would be glad if 75 per cent of the unemployed would accept the plan of some other cities of the province."

There is no objection to a man taking odd jobs, but there are many cases where the objection is raised.

ADVANCE DATE RELIEF PARLEY

Date of the interprovincial conference arranged by Hon. T. D. Pattullo, premier of British Columbia, to discuss relief and other matters, has been changed to Monday next, Dec. 4, to suit the convenience of Hon. John Bracken, premier of Manitoba, who will be at the coast at that time. A fourth western province is expected to be represented.

It is likely that Premier J. E. Brownlee will represent Alberta, although this will not be definitely known until Saturday.

At the conference in Calgary on Wednesday to discuss proposed reduction of wheat acreage by 15 per cent, in the Prairie provinces, a preliminary discussion on mutual questions of general interest took place and it was decided to fall in with Premier Pattullo's invitation for a general parley.

It is expected that either Premier J. E. Brownlee or Hon. M. A. McPherson, K.C., attorney-general, will represent Saskatchewan. While relief will be the main feature of the conference, provincial financing and other matters also will be discussed.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Can the ends of justice be served by Lynch law? Can there be any justification for lynching a criminal?

A 19-year-old negro youth has been lynched here by a mob of 7,000 at St. Joseph, Mo. Another lynching occurred at Salisbury, Md. Governor Ralph of California says he will pardon the lyncher.

Thomas H. Thoms and John M. Holmes, kidnappers who slew young Brooke Hart of San Jose. Three flagrant violations of the constituted forms of law and order have blazed across front pages of world newspapers in the last few days.

The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter sought comment.

DAVID McDONALD, hardware man: "I do not think any criminal should be placed in the hands of a mob. Law enforcement in the United States, however, appears to be very lax and the best examples of lynching in California and Missouri may be due to curb crime there when malefactors have the fear that they will be punished even though they may circumvent the courts but the practice is barbarous and may bring the forces of law and order into contempt."

J. W. BLAIN, frontiersman: "Lynching is never justified, but in some cases it appears to be forced on people when a system of law enforcement becomes incompetent. United States jurisprudence is incompetent, due to the system of electing judges. A judge cannot keep his mind on his job when he has to keep it on his salary and his next election."

H. A. MCNEIL, sheet metal expert: "Lynching is never justified. The examples which have started the world this last week just show a weakness in the United States constitution. The whole trouble revolves back to the system of electing judges."

ABE W. MILLER, barrister: "Lynching is never justified. It takes away the right that is inherent in everyone for a fair trial. Justice can never be served by this method. There is always the danger of someone who is innocent being summarily dealt with."

THE TINYMITES

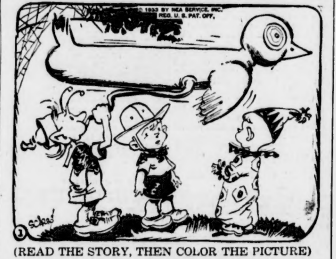

The man up in the plane cried out, "Before I land, I'll whist about and show you lots some clever tricks. This is a magic plane."

"When I command, or dip my swoops. Now watch! I'll do some loop-the-loops. Just keep your eyes on me until some altitude gain. Then, up he went. Oh my, how fast! Wee Scooty shouted, "There!

"round. "At last I've found you Tinymites," said he. "I'm full of cheer."

"Last year you lads helped Santa Claus, and he was your gain because you did fine work in his toy shop. Now, that's why I am here."

"Oh, gee, to help him would be grand, but we're too far from Santa Land," said Windy, "and we

At last he's straightened out and now he'll make a circle in the air," he said. "I have a balloon bird you can ride. I'll blow the dandy bird up. Then you lads can follow me."

The bird was then brought into sight. "Oh, gee, I hope it works all right," said Scooty as the man began to blow it way up high.

The thing grew faster, puff by puff. "Don't worry, I know my stuff!" exclaimed the man. "It soon will take you sailing through the air."

Sale of Frocks! Considered Good Value at $5.95
So many occasions, so many parties, when a frock of just this type is absolutely "right." Long, and a bit inclined to be slightly "swaying" in the skirt. Short in the sleeves, with caplets or puffs or other clever shoulder arrangements. Crepe or satin effects, mostly in artificial silks. The season's popular shades. 12 to 16 STYLES.
